April 10th, YOR 2033

The party travels to the Misty Graves to do some recon. They learn that the battle was one sided, and that Virkon's mightiest mostly died as their breath was vacuumed from their bodies. The remaining monuments to those dead were simple affairs in the style of the Blood Elves.

April 11th, YOR 2033

The heroes come upon the Cackle temple late on the night of the 11th. After a brief discussion. they decide to take a path through an abandoned building to the center of the temple. Unfortunately, that path led them directly through where the goblin witches were hiding. Many of the party were unlucky and nearly caught by the goblins' foul magic. The party made a hasty retreat, with little damage to either side.

April 12th, YOR 2033

On the next afternoon, the heroes sneak back into the Cackle Temple. From a quick recon it appears that the goblins made nearly no attempt to change up their defenses, figuring that it worked great before it would work in the future. The Half-Gross heroes took advantage, sending Chummo in with his mage-slaying sword to neutralize the witches.

The Half-Gross heroes press in. They encounter a half giant-ogre that is masked and armored. They realize this creature's name is Gzrok, and he looks very much like Moonshadow in the face. Gzrok roars about how awesome he is and that his father the mighty ogre Deozug will crush any civilization that dares to press into the ancient Virkon Woods.

The Half-Gross heroes manage to surround the half-giant and defeat him, but not without some hard work. The heroes find some treasure in the sarcophagus in the center of the ruined temple.

April 13th-16th, YOR 2033
The heroes return to Algart

April 17th - May 1st, YOR 2033
The heroes rest, and Moonshadow makes scrolls.
