Commies Confronted by Churchgoing Citizen

By Buck Greasley

When civil unrest threatened the local Federal Savings & Loan, one helpful woman of the cloth brought her own brand of schoolroom justice to bear. Sister Myra Cobblecot, a nun with an attitude took it upon herself to break up the rowdy and unlawful demonstration of anarchists and communists herself with only her trusty ruler. Helpful youngster and future politician Richard Nixon tells this intrepid reporter that “She was pretty fierce! I sure wouldn’t want to get on her bad side.” Nixon, an intern at the law firm of Baker and Lee is for anyone who drives off communists and Democrats from our streets.
